THAT'LL BE THE DAY
By Tony Romeo

When the chains around me no longer ground me
And my soul can sail away to a better life,
That'll be the day.
And when the silence is broken and words unspoken
Can finally have their say, then we'll all sing out,
That'll be the day, that'll be the day.
We should be together like the sand and sea;
Like the rocks in the sunshine go together
With the grass on the summer ground,
The leaves on the tree;
Like the sheep and the meadow go together,
Like the words and music, the bite and the bee;
Like the work and the pay, that'll be the day.
And when those feelings I've hidden
Are no longer forbidden and our love is here to stay,
Then we'll all shine on, that'll be the day.
That'll be the day.

THERE'S NO DOUBT IN MY MIND
By Wes Farrell and Gerry Goffin

There's no doubt in my mind
With your wandering smile
You won't be staying very long.
Ah, but you're gonna find
If you hang around awhile
You will remember me when you're gone.
You may not think that my love counts for much,
But you'll remember me, baby,
Ev'ry single time we touch,
One of these days you're gonna
Wish that you were mine,
Don't be mistaken, baby,
You won't be a-wasting any time.
There's no need to pretend
That we can forsee just how long
These days will last,
But I tell you I intend that the time
You spend with me won't be forgotten when It's past. You may not think
That my love counts for much,
But you'll remember me, baby,
Ev'ry single time we touch,
One of these days you're gonna
Wish that you were mine,
Don't be mistaken, baby,
You won't be a-wasting any time.
You may not think that my love counts for much,
But you'll remember me, baby,
Ev'ry single time we touch,
One of these days you're gonna
Wish that you were mine,
Don't be mistaken, baby,
You won't be a-wasting any time.
You may not think that my love counts for much,
But you'll remember me, baby,
Ev'ry single time we touch,
One of these days you're gonna
Wish that you were mine.
