

Together a lot—but just friends

Who are the girls who are lucky enough to go out with David? The first one you'll think of is Susan Dey, David's co-star in the Partridge Family series. Well, David and Sue hardly ever go out together because they have worked side by side for so long on the programme that they are almost like the brother and sister they play.

They have a good time together, fooling around on the set between takes, and Sue sees more of David than any of his girlfriends do, but, apart from friendly lunch dates, there is nothing between them.

Susan and David say this is because they both want totally different things out of life. Sue is quite a home-loving girl and she would like her man to be the same. David goes more for the bright lights, and he likes to travel a lot, meeting different people and seeing different places.

Most of David's real girlfriends are girls he has met at the studios, or family friends. He usually likes to get to know a girl before he takes her out for the first time.

David has no steady dates though, and he doesn't expect the girls he goes out with to stay in all the time when he can't see them.

Are You His Type?

What are the qualities David looks for in a girl?

Basically he likes a girl with a sunny temper who is charming and natural with everyone she meets. He likes her to be especially nice to him, of course, to make him feel really special himself!

He likes a girl to be thoughtful and understanding, so that she can make him feel better when he feels a bit sad, or when he's tired.

When he is away from her he likes her to write beautiful letters to him, so he wants to come back as quickly as he can.

He likes a natural girl—one who loves flowers and trees and the open air; and a natural grace and beauty are sure to win his heart.

It could be you. You never know where you might bump into David—so practise your sunny smile just in case!
