

Hello again...

I hope you've had a wonderful year—I sure have. Lots of hard work, of course—recording, concert tours, acting in my first film—but I've loved every minute of it. I know I'm really lucky to be involved in work that I truly enjoy. I hope you've found a lot of satisfaction in the past year, too. Every moment of life is precious because it never comes again, so it's important that we make the most of it. Don't you agree?

I'm especially happy that I had an opportunity to return to your beautiful country. Britain is one of my favourite places. I think London is a very exciting city... and it's a real joy to be able to get out into the country, where the atmosphere is so peaceful and refreshing.

Though they're very different in many ways, Los Angeles and London do have a lot in common. But of course, the climates couldn't be less alike! This past winter, temperatures in L.A. reached into the 80's, and in the summer they zoomed into the 90's and even topped 100! (My pool sure came in handy!)

But the people are the most interesting and important aspect of any village, city or country. And it's always a special treat being with my British fans. You make me feel so much at home... I really appreciate that...

But I suppose the best way I can express my thanks is through my music. So when you hear me singing, remember that I'm singing for you... with all my heart.

With my love, David Cassidy
