

SOME OF DAVID'S PRIVATE THOUGHTS

"The great outdoors and I are good friends — we always have been! I love to camp in the mountains, hike in forests, get some sun on the beaches, or just sit quietly in a field of clover and wild flowers!"

"Late at night, every once in awhile, I get so lonely and sad that I wish I could be surrounded by a wife and family—being single is great most of the time—but sometimes..."

"I'm always aware of the great amount of love my fans give to me. I wish that I had arms long enough and strong enough so that I could give each of them a big hug to show them how much I care about them too!"

"All animals, from tiny bees to large horses, recognize when someone cares about them—guess that's why every pet or animal I've ever had loved me as much as I loved them."

"Sometimes, studying my script all by myself on the Partridge set are the loneliest moments ever."

"I love the morning, but I have to admit that sometimes it takes almost an earthquake to get me going if it's too early!"

"I think that concerts are a groove—I guess I'll always love giving them. But all the hurrying, packing, and unpacking can really get to me at times—especially if I've forgotten something!"

"I hope that all the people who have seen one of my concerts know that each song I sing has a great deal of meaning to me."

"I know that some people think that my life is just one big whirl of parties, fun, and games — those people don't know me or my life at all!"
