

Kris Tabori

Len as "Romeo"

Lisa Gerritsen

Lisa Eilbacher

MOVIE NEWS

ALL OF YOUNG AMERICA flipped recently over the spectacular and spellbinding performance of handsome young actor Kristoffer Tabori on the CBS special The Glass House. It was an inside look at what goes on in some of America's prisons. Kris' sensitive and sympathetic portrayal of an innocent first-time young prisoner—who finally commits suicide because he cannot bear the outrageous pressures of prison life—not only captured our hearts, but made us fall helplessly in love with the talented Mr. Tabori.

Len Whiting and Olivia Hussey, the "Romeo" and "Juliet" of Paramount's Romeo And Juliet, will be returning to the silver screen this summer—as beautiful and as moving as ever. In the five years since Romeo And Juliet first came to the screen, both of the young stars have found their own respective "Romeo" and "Juliet" and are doing very nicely, thank you.

James Thurber, one of America's wittiest and imaginative writers, left us a legacy of fine short stories and novels. Cinerama Center Films, with the help of many gifted writers, will bring the delightful film The War Between Men And Women to the screen. Two young stars who'll surely catch your eye are 13 year-old Lisa Gerritsen, who you met in her Emmy award-winning performance on TV's My World And Welcome To It (another Thurber adaptation) and who you often see on The Mary Tyler Moore Show—and Lisa-Eilbacher. This flick marks her motion picture debut, but you may have seen her on your telly in CBS-TV's My Three Sons and ABC's Alias Smith And Jones. Hope you catch this one—cos it's a winner!

For all you horror film-freaks, AIP's Blood From The Mummy's Tomb not only offers shrieks and shrills galore, but also the thrill of handsome Andrew Keir to boot. Take a gander at this sex-y hunk, then rush right out to see his film . . . Academy Award nominee Jeff Bridges—son of Lloyd Bridges and brother of Beau Bridges—returns to the screen, after his stunning performance in Columbia's The Last Picture Show, in Columbia's Fat City . . . AIP brings you Boxcar Bertha, starring talented David Carradine. You can also catch David in ABC's new TV series Kung Fu, a Chinese western. A Chinese western?!

Here's a mellow fellow who will make your heart go pitter-patter—Edward Albert, son of veteran actor Eddie Albert. He stars in Columbia's Butterflies Are Free, which is a sensitive story of young love as timeless and moving as Shakespeare's Romeo And Juliet and Paramount's Love Story. What makes this love story different from most—and what makes Edward Albert's performance so magnificent—is that in it he plays a blind boy determined to live and love just as normal people do. (P.S. This is the movie role both David Cassidy and Bobby Sherman wanted so badly.)

SPEC's hilarious movie-of-the-month pick is Columbia's Buck And The Preacher, starring Sidney Poitier and Harry Belafonte. Harry plays an irreverent preacher and soulful Sidney stars as "Buck", a former Union Cavalry

Sidney Poitier & Harry Belafonte

Timothy Bottoms

Jack Wild

Stephen Hudis

