

DAVID'S WACKY WEEK

Have you ever had one of those days where nothing you do seems to go right? Well, you can certainly understand why David Cassidy won't forget the time when he had a whole week of days like that.

It all started when David went skiing with some friends! David simply adores skiing since he took it up on his vacation in Europe. Naturally, he was looking forward to going away for a few days with some of his buddies. He had visions of spending twelve-hour days gliding down the white-powdered slopes!

They loaded up their camper, and took off for the hideaway cabin they had rented near the ski resort. The fellows sang songs and were in great spirits during the four-hour ride to the cabin.

As soon as they reached their destination, David got out his skis and went to the slopes. That is, he got as far as the ski lift! He felt terribly dizzy, and one of his friends remarked how rosy his cheeks were. Thinking it was just the change in altitude, or perhaps his excitement about the trip, David decided to go ahead and ski anyway.

By the time he made it to the top of the slopes, he knew he was really ill! His stomach was churning, he felt hot all over, and he could barely stand up. He was so dizzy he couldn't make it back to the cabin without the help of his friends.

Fortunately they were able to locate a doctor at one of the nearby lodges, who broke the bad news to David that he had a bad case of the flu and had to remain in bed for at least the next two days...until he was well enough to fly home and be seen by his regular doctor.

So there he was, lying in bed with a temperature of 102. Although his friends all took turns staying with him while the others were out enjoying the snow, David still felt miserable!

Within two days, a wobbly David
