STAR

The New Seekers, that great group from Australia, really packed them in at Disneyland.

EYEBROWS raise all over Hollywood whenever JUDY STRANGIS of "Room 222" shows up at a party on the arm of RICHARD HATCH of the daytime show "All My Children" instead of DAVID CASSIDY. It looks as though the Judy-David thing may not really be a romance, after all—just a good friendship. Recently, Judy was seen with David at a party at DAVE MADDEN's house, then turned up a few days later at another party with Richard. Maybe she just can't make up her mind between them. With those two groovy guys to choose from, what girl could? Producer Michael Coyte uncovered a new future star during interviews for his new film "Arnold Hammond." He's RICHARD VAIRETTA, and from the talent he's shown so far it looks like he's got what it takes to make it. Richard's presently thinking of changing his name . . . what do you think? JACK WILD and his agent were spotted having lunch at The Old World restaurant in Los Angeles, and were just bubbling with excitement after closing a deal with Sid and Marty Krofft to do a Christmas special based on the "Pufnstuf" characters. That should be quite a Christmas present for everybody.

BOBBY SHERMAN had been keeping so busy lately with his new series "Getting Together" and his concert and recording dates that he suffered a light bout with exhaustion. His doctors ordered him to get complete bed rest for a few days. But don't worry—he's feeling as good as ever now and is back at work.
