

that towel was printed the name of the hotel we were staying at. In a matter of forty seconds the word spread through 8000 people, and everyone in the room knew where we were staying. In fact, the girl sitting next to me turned and said, 'David's staying at the Admiral Hotel' . . . I said, 'Oh, thank you. I'll look him up.' But it wasn't funny; we were mobbed the next day when we checked out."

I have known Sam for almost a year, and he has a great sense of humor. He's a warm, friendly person. He believes in earning everything he gets and works hard at his job as assistant film editor and at his acting career. The day I got together with him, he had been up until five a.m. in the morning, editing The Bob Hope Christmas Special. He's appeared in two films, Before It's Too Late, and The McMasters. I saw him in a stage play at L.A. City College called, The Purification.

Sam kept drinking his special health shake, so I finally asked to taste it. It was so good, I had him make me one. I got the recipe from him, and I want to pass it on to you:

In a blender put eight ounces of low fat milk, a raw egg, two tablespoons of wheat germ, two tablespoons of Hoffman High protein, one tablespoon soya protein powder, one tablespoon brewer's yeast, three tablespoons of honey, one tablespoon of wheat germ oil, and blend at a slow speed. Then, at a slightly faster speed, add four strawberries and four boysenberries and one banana. If you want it cold, add an ice cube and blend at the highest speed.

Sam Hyman has been a good friend to David Cassidy. They have helped each other. Their friendship is strong and solid, and together they have overcome many hard times and problems. David has rewarded Sam by allowing him to handle his merchandising of products, and in turn Sam has worked hard to make it a success. Even though any girl in America today would give her left arm to live with David Cassidy, Sam Hyman has found that there are many problems connected with being his roommate, but realizes that they're all worth the trouble.

See David on The Partridge Family.

were useless. He's the kind of man who has never been able to turn the other cheek and look away, and Jim knew this time would be no exception. "The kids needed help, so I stepped in," he later explained to a friend.

But what could one man do against a hundred policemen? Never underestimate Jim Garner. He is one of the most sly, cunning men around. Adopting a West
