

David Cassidy

Season Talks About David

I had such fun doing a guest star role on "The Partridge Family" this season that I could hardly believe the week flew by as fast as it did. And, the reason for that was David Cassidy!

David is so good-natured himself that he helps to keep the rest of the set in great spirits. He is a natural story teller, and between scenes he would have us all in hysterics with his antics on the ski slopes or how everytime he tried to do some small repair job in his house some terrible disaster would occur!

There is a serious side to David, too. I spent several lunch hours listening to him play some new song he had just written on his guitar. He would close his eyes as he concentrated on the lyrics and would strum the guitar gently.

Sometimes if David is deep in thought, he can look at you but really not see you. It gives you an eerie feeling to see his deep, penetrating eyes staring at you, almost through you, and to know that he's probably struggling for a line to end his new song or thinking of his next scene.

You can't be sensitive around David because he's a terrible teaser. If you think you have a big brother or a cousin who teases you without mercy, they have nothing on David. That's the way he shows you he likes you! When he's extremely polite and rigid, it's either because he doesn't like the person or he's uncomfortable with them. Either way, they're the only two people who escape David's teasing. Everyone else has to learn to not only take it but give it back to him as well.

By the end of the week I was pretty good at both, and we would have these mock feuds on the set. After about five or ten minutes, we'd both start laughing and neither one of us could look at the other without breaking up.

David is a super person. He makes everyone feel special, especially girls like me and you! It's like we were the only people in the world who matter to him! How very fortunate I am to have become one of David's "special people," and I hope I get the chance to star with him again!
