

BEING A TEACHER

—Yes, you hear me right. You know how much I love acting and I'm sure it will be my life's career because acting is a never-ending challenge. But... if I could lead a second life (and you can through daydreams) I think I'd love to be a teacher.

The subject wouldn't matter too much—from scuba diving to history—what would matter most is that I would strive to turn on the light in someone's mind. All through school I hated most of my classes because the teachers just wanted me to recite back what they had said or what was written in a book.

One teacher, though, made me want to learn on my own, to discover new things about our world. I'll never forget him and if I could, I'd like to be just like him!

DIRECTING A MOVIE

—That's another thing that crosses my mind often. Someday I want to make a movie—I don't necessarily want to put over a big, heavy message or make a film to shock anyone. More than anything, I'd like to make a movie to make people all over the world happy, if only for those moments they were watching it. I've seen probably two movies in my life that have made me feel good inside as I watched.

For a while I was lost in the story and I was happier than I've ever been. It's my goal to make a movie like that someday and I know I'll feel good inside when that daydream becomes a reality!

WONDERING ABOUT YOU

—I think about you more than anything else. I wonder if you're the girl I'm searching for, and if when we meet will I be right for you? When real love grows between two people it's something that's a mystery of nature. No one can plan it or force it to happen.

I think about all the wonderful things we'll do together and the secrets no one will know but us! I think about the daydreaming we'll do together and I know because of you my greatest joy in life is yet to come!
