

WAYNE ROGERS: As "Trapper John" on *M*A*S*H*, Wayne Rogers finds himself in the strangest and most amusing predicaments! You never know what this fella might be coming across around the *M*A*S*H* compound. Well, in real life, some pretty weird things happen to Wayne, too. For instance, since the series is such a rousing success, Wayne decided to move himself, his wife Mitzi and their children into a bigger house. Right after they were settled in the new digs, Wayne was gardening—and found an old fencing foil in the flowerbed! Later he found out that the house used to be owned by Cornell Wilde, who starred in lots and lots of Errol Flynn-type action flicks. The dueling foil must have been his. Touche, Wayne!

TELLY SAVALAS: Telly Savalas says he doesn't like living life "in the middle." He wants to be on top or on the bottom—but not in between. Right now Telly's way on top, since Kojak is the top-rated show on the TV screen. But tomorrow, he says, who knows? And he says he likes it that way, never knowing what the next day will bring.

Maybe it's because that's the way his life was when he was a little boy in New York. One day his father would be wealthy; the next, the family would be poor. As a little boy, Telly even sold pies from a truck on the street, after his father had lost his money in the Depression. Telly loves the excitement of uncertainty!

DAVID CASSIDY: Guess who's getting married? Well, David Cassidy isn't saying "I do" yet. But he's finally confessed that's what he wants to do most. David says age 24 is when a guy ought to start thinking about settling down and starting a family of his own. He's tired of the footloose life, he insists, and is ready to sit by the fire for long, romantic evenings at home. We bet the loneliness and exhaustion of his big World Tour finally started getting to him—it was six months on the road (all over the globe) in all. And that kind of running around is enough to make even the most confirmed bachelor think about settling down!

DAVID HOLMES: If you've been wondering whatever happened to super-groovy David Holmes, worry no more. David has been alive and well in New York City, where he settled after returning from an exciting trip to London. "Sometimes it's a good idea to sit back and think about life, work, everything," David explains. "I wanted to figure out exactly what I wanted to do with my life." After sitting in a rented New York City apartment and weighing different show business offers, David made up his mind. "I like Hollywood the best!" he says. And now he's back! You'll be hearing more about David.

WAYNE ROGERS

TELLY SAVALAS

DAVID CASSIDY