

David Cassidy, idol of the teenage set, is not only sufficiently recovered from his gallstone operation to return to his "Partridge Family" TV series, he turns up early in September to guest star on "The Glen Campbell Show." Program will be taped at CBS-TV in Hollywood for airing November 2nd.

I can't tell you how much fan mail I receive about young David, son of Jack Cassidy. And that even goes for telephone calls from all over the country at the time he was hospitalized.

One group of girls (sounded like a dozen) shared the cost of a telephone call from Atlanta to hear from me "personally" that their big crush had successfully come through his surgery and would soon be back Partridge-Familying again.
