

"David Cassidy has a good voice but awful material. He's the typical American show-biz teenybopper, created by some smart people who probably earn a lot more than he does. I think he's a pretty lonely boy at the top. At least the Osmond Brothers have each other to lean on, while Cassidy is on his own. He's a typical industrial product."