SECURITY plans for next week's David Cassidy pop concert in Auckland are top secret.

Simon Dickie, New Zealand manager for the promoters Harry M. Miller Attractions, has refused to disclose any information about the security ring which will surround Cassidy from his arrival in New Zealand till his departure.

He said: "I've had hundreds of phone calls from girls who want to know which hotel he's staying at and which plane he will be arriving on."

Cassidy will play to an estimated 15,800 fans at Eden Park on the night of February 26.

It will be the first concert of his Australasian tour.

The concert organisers are not expecting a riot.

But after Cassidy's frightening experience at Wembley Stadium, when he was mobbed by thousands of screaming fans, they are taking the utmost care with their arrangements.
