

DAVID CASSIDY, the millionaire superstar, starts an all-states tour today hoping, he says, to appeal to the "grown-ups" of Australia.

Cassidy, 23, has given a shock interview this week about his private and public life.

He says in "What Now. David Cassidy . . .?" that he wants to become a family favorite like Frank Sinatra, Elvis Presley and Paul Newman.

In the exclusive interview, published in Listener In-TV, Cassidy says that he is a "loner", that his early fame and popularity turned him "paranoic".

Cassidy aims at parents

And that there is no woman in his life.

Cassidy spoke to Listener In-TV reporter, George Wilson, in Auckland.

Cassidy will appear at a Moomba concert at the MCG on Sunday week, March 10.

Listener In-TV is on sale from today.

It costs only 10c and covers all showbiz news and all Melbourne TV and radio programs.
