

CASSIDY CALLING

I'm writing this early this week due to deadlines and David still hasn't returned to Hollyweird. However, I do want to tell you that an offer is in the wind for him to tour internationally. It would be the tour of his dreams, with small audiences, and no screaming. I'm wondering if he'll do it, though. He wants quite badly to be heard by an audience that comes to listen, but is he willing to risk trying this just yet?