

Q: Where did David Cassidy meet his wife and what's he doing these days? He's still a great actor. — J.R., Jonesboro, Ark.

A: David Cassidy first met his wife, actress Kay Lenz, in Santa Barbara, Calif. It was here that he had moved following the cancellation of "The Partridge Family" television series. Currently, in addition to the time David spends breeding race horses, the actor-singer has made guest appearances on such shows as "Fantasy Island," has a short-lived weekly series titled "Undercover Man," and has completed a motion picture for television titled, "The Night the City Screamed."
