

A Wham double for Cassidy

TWO of pop's top pin-ups are set to team up again in a bid to make another top ten hit record.

Wham! heart-throb George Michael joined David Cassidy to help The Last Kiss rocket to number six in the charts — and now the pair are lining up to work together once more.

Award-winning musician George was happy just to sing backing vocals on that hit — and he'll take that backstage role again. But, he might also help with production.

The song is called Remember Me and will be released next month.

The partnership underlines George and David's close friendship. George wanted to help David with his comeback hit and David was happy to be the subject of his friend's first interview when George tried his hand at rock writing.

Both have been teenyboppers' idols — George ten years after David.

George and David . . . close friends
