

Ex-Partridge Family singer David Cassidy was in London last week to record an album using some compositions by Wham! musician George Michael. While there, Cassidy, looking young for 34, gave Michael and Wham! partner Andrew Ridgeley some fatherly advice about being teenybopper pop stars.

United Press International
DAVID CASSIDY

"He had the same problems we have now — people kept pigeonholing him," said Michael. David's advice? "He told me never to do any series like the Partridge Family." The British duo, both 21, had Top 5 hits in Britain and America last week. Wham! plans a U.S. tour in February, just six to 10 dates, venues not yet selected. Then Wham! will rest and go on a full tour in July or August.

— Compiled by Keith Morse