

TIME RUNS OUT

... for Cassidy's latest marriage

★ SUPERSTAR David Cassidy's three-year-old marriage is on the rocks, friends claimed last night. Cassidy — who took over Cliff Richard's role in the West End musical Time in March — has not seen his wife Meryl Tanz for three months.

Says a spokesman for the show: "As far as we know, Mrs Cassidy has not attended any performances."

And David — known to his pals as Daisy — has been spending more and more time in trendy West End night-clubs.

"His appetite for party-going is insatiable," says a pal. "He leaves the rest of us behind. It is quite obvious his marriage has struck problems, or else he would not feel the desire to be out every night of the week. He hasn't once mentioned Meryl, which is weird. It is a great shame, cause he's such a terrific guy."

David, 37, was married to actress Kay

PROBLEMS: Meryl and David

Lenz during the height of his fame with The Partridge Family TV series in the 70s.

He will star in Time until September 26, although it is unlikely Meryl will go to watch.
