MAGAZINE

Hello!

Time certainly does seem to fly, doesn't it? It seems like only a few days ago that Christmas was happening and we were all looking forward to a bright New Year.

Regardless of what the economics and politics hold for us here in Britain, we can be certain of one thing—this is going to be the best ever year for David. He's going to show everybody that he's not just a "teenybop idol" (whatever THAT is!!).

This month, we've got two fantastic features on David, as well as a first person account of what it's like to meet David. Clea Mylonas, the lucky winner of the Meet David Cassidy in California Competition, sponsored by The Friends Of The Children Society. Clea won the competition, which, you may remember was advertised in this magazine last summer, by raising exactly £500 for The Friends Of The Children Society.

In this issue, we've also decided to print some absolutely smashing entries to our recent competition, in which readers who had met David personally were asked to send in the story of their meeting.

Although we had to close the competition on the date we announced, we had so many fantastic entries after the closing date that we decided that, even if we couldn't award them prizes, there was nothing to stop us from publishing some more of them, and so we did! Once you read them, I'm sure you'll agree that it was a good idea.

Also in this month's issue, we have a feature on one of the aspects of David's life which we've more or less missed in previous issues of the magazine. Fortunately, Janis Hodge of Ullapool in Scotland clued us in on our failure. She wrote to us saying that "Although I have heard bits and pieces of information about David's love of horses in the past, I have yet to read about it in your mag. Perhaps you could do something on him in a future issue."

Well, Janis, we're always glad to take advice from our readers, especially when the advice is as good as yours. As you'll see in this issue, we have indeed written a feature on David and his horses. This has been one of the continuing threads in David's life, and it's high time we looked at David and his love for horses.

That's about all, except to welcome you to our new, streamlined David Cassidy Magazine. You'll probably notice some of the changes in this month's magazine. Starting with this issue, David's Personal Letter will no longer be appearing. Instead, each month we'll be bringing you another full length feature about David.

See you in March.
