Hi there!

As you know, the Post Office has increased both the first and second class postage during the past year and they are intending to do so twice during the coming year - all of which makes it absolutely impossible for us to ask you to send any pre-stamped addressed newsletter vouchers in future for the very simple reason that we don't know what postage to ask you to put on them.

So, from now on, we are going to make a straight charge for the fan club wallet of 85p and I would like to assure everyone who gets the wallet that it has been completely re-done and that everything in it is new and different from last year's. Therefore, if you are due to renew your subscription now, please send an 85p postal order to me, together with your name and address in block capitals, and I will get your new fan club wallet off to you. It will not contain the normal newsletter vouchers because of the changes in the postage that I have already mentioned above. In future, therefore, we are going to separate the cost of the wallet, which is now 85p, from any additional mailings that we do.

I know that you would all like far more information about David's future plans. The trouble is that right now he's concentrating on working out exactly what he wants to do over the next five years. When he completed his last world tour, he stated very clearly that he didn't intend to do exactly the same sort of thing again. This didn't mean, of course, that he wouldn't ever again appear on stage in a public concert. And, personally, I expect him to put together several big specials in certain cities of the world, including London, in future years.

But, what he doesn't particularly want to do again is to appear in a series of concerts right across the world, one after another. The strain on him is tremendous and if he had kept on repeating the sort of massive world tours that he has undertaken over the past two years, frankly, his health would have suffered. But, it is very difficult for him to tell people what he is doing before he has decided to do it so, at the moment, he is spending most of his time at home, with friends, visiting clubs, art galleries and writing, etc.

Quite a number of Fan Club members have written to me asking if they can organise petitions with the aim of persuading the BBC to repeat The Partridge Family series once again on television. I think this is an absolutely marvellous idea and I want to do everything possible to help. I see no reason why individual Fan Club members shouldn't organise their local petitions because it will certainly impress the BBC more if they get several lists containing hundreds, or thousands, of signatures from people all over the country, rather than one big one just organised by us. So, anything you can do in this direction will be great.

Also, Pauline Cole and Miss A. Russell want to organise a special petition to persuade the BBC to show the film that they made of David Cassidy in Concert. I am sure that many of you would also like to do everything you can to help, so please do write to them at: 40 Millerfield Road, Flat 6, House 35, Dalmarock, Glasgow, G40 4SS.

Susie
