

DAVID AS A PERSON

fame has made him big-headed or conceited; on the contrary, David is sometimes very shy and embarrassed. The David Cassidy we know in public, covers up what is inside. He may be everything a girl could ever dream of, having the good looks, being talented and rich. However, David realizes this and obviously isn't taken in by girls wanting the publicity of being seen with him. Do they ever consider what he wants? David wants someone to talk to, to understand him, and now, possibly to love him. This love may be nearer to him, having at last, time to think about his life. He's a person who knows what he wants, and, somehow he'll get it and make the most of it.

The way David has feelings for others, and can understand them so well, makes him such a likeable person to begin with.

AWARENESS

To have this kind of "awareness" about life, is certainly a virtue in his case. David seems so "aware" of every place he visits and any people he might meet, and then to be able to write and talk and make you feel that you're actually there with him, is the marvellous thing.

So, this straight forward, happy-go-lucky guy is David Cassidy. I've never met him, came close to it at his concerts, but never quite made it, so, I'll be truthful and say, "I don't know what David is like as a person, because I've never met him." We all know that we feel each one of us understands and loves David a little more than the next girl, so naturally, I feel that I understand him the best. But, until a miracle happens, I'd just like to take this opportunity to thank David for all the years of happiness and pleasure he's given everyone, and to wish him success and good luck with whatever he decides to do in the future.
