BUDDING POET

Dear Pat,

I've never been any good at poetry, but when it comes to David — I'll try anything. So, I've made an extra special effort in the hope that you will print my poem. Here it is. I hope you like it. David, I write this poem for you
But believe me, each word is true
Throughout the years I've watched you change
From a boy to a man — which isn't so strange
Though you have grown in body and mind
There's still one thing I'm glad to find
That David, the person, just hasn't changed
No, not at all, he's just been rearranged
So David, keep changing as you think best
I'll always be with you, along with the rest.
NANCY, 16 Hariand Cottages, Scotstoun, Glasgow.

Who says that you can't write poetry Nancy? You seem quite a budding Wordsworth to me, and I'm sure that David agrees. Thanks for the poem. I thought that it's great. ED.

SCRAP-BOOKS

Dear Pat,

While sorting out my bedroom, I found all my Cassidy scrap-books—16 of them in fact! Unfortunately I don't have much time to look after them these days, so I'm afraid that I'll have to sell them. Please don't get me wrong—I still love David very much, that's why I've got over 2000 pictures to prove it, but I thought that someone who could appreciate them more would be better off having them. So, I'm going to sell them for £2.50p. Please send a stamped addressed envelope.

Thanks very much. First come, first served.
KAY, 80 Western Avenue, Dagenham, Essex RM10 8XH.

I shouldn't think that you'll have too much trouble selling those pix Kay, in fact, you'd better watch out. I think that you might have a lot of envelopes on your doorstep in the very near future. ED.

SATURDAY SCENE

Dear Pat,

Please could you print this message in the David Cassidy Magazine:—"Everyone in the London area who would like to see a special programme on Saturday Scene comprised of David's appearances on the show should write to:—Warren Beach, Head of Presentation and Promotion, London Weekend Television, Kent House, Upper Ground, London SE1 9LT.

They are giving the idea serious consideration, so it's vital that as many people as possible write to them."
SHARON, 51 Edison Road, Welling, Kent.

Come on all you David fans, this is a chance that you can't miss! Get that writing paper out and let London Weekend hear what you think. ED.

CONTRIBUTIONS PLEASE

Dear Pat,

My friend and I are making a book to send to David filled with poems, stories, photos and messages from all his fans. If anyone would like to contribute, please send anything to:—JILL and JILL, 43 Hallfields Road, Orford, Warrington, Cheshire.

Poets, artists, writers and cartoonists—now's the chance to get your masterpieces shown to David. A chance not to miss, surely? ED.
