MAGAZINE

Hello,

What a wise decision RCA made to release "Darlin'" as David's latest single! If you haven't bought it yet, I'll tell you that it's a complete re-mix of the album track, so you won't be buying the same thing twice. The 'B' side is "This Could Be The Night", co-written by Harry Nilsson and David himself, and they're a great duo!

As everyone knows by now, David didn't come over to this country to work on his new LP. The reasons are a bit complicated, but we have got a feature in this issue explaining exactly what happened.

Once he decided that he wasn't going to make the trip, we were free to name the actual studio where he was going to record, which was, of course, Rockfield. But please don't rush over there this coming weekend because, firstly, you won't find David there, and, secondly — as Susie mentioned in the last issue — they don't want anyone to go near their very valuable recording equipment.

As we have revealed in our special article, the main reason that David didn't come over this time was because he wasn't able to bring certain key musicians with him. Every top recording artist eventually ends up with a small circle of people who he can rely on to make just the right sounds. Naturally, David didn't want to travel all the way from the West Coast of America unless he could bring these few special players with him. I won't say anymore because we have explained the full details in the feature.

I would just like to say once again that we are not taking any new subscriptions for the David Cassidy magazine at present. We seem to have been getting more requests than ever during recent weeks, but a lot of these have come from overseas and, of course, the David Cassidy magazine does take many weeks, or even months, to get to places like Gibraltar, Australia, New Zealand, Hong Kong Yes, it's surprising just how wide the interest in David is. So, please, please don't ask us to send you the magazine on subscription and, most important of all, DON'T send us any money because it just means we have to send it back to you and that's a waste of time for both you and us.

We are, of course, always happy to send you back issues of the David Cassidy magazine. We always print more than we actually need of each issue so that we can put some on the shelf for anyone who misses a particular issue. We are also not putting up the cost of these yet even though the postage has gone up, so if you are missing any copies of David's magazine then now's the time to get them.

All you have to do is to send us a postal order or cheque (or money order if you live outside the UK) to Readers Requests, Official David Cassidy Magazine, 58 Parker Street, London, WC2B 5QB. Full details of how much to send are on page 10 of this issue.
