Have you ever felt that there was so much going on around you that you didn't have time to catch your breath? Well, that's the kind of month it's been at FaVE, so sit tight and let me tell you about it!

There are a number of new, very exciting young actors on the scene right now. They certainly caught your attention, 'cause your letters to FaVE have showed it! David Cassidy is one strong contender for "super-fave" status, that's for sure! He's really exciting to talk to, and obviously he's gotten the message across to you, too!

David says the most unexpected things! While he was in my office last week talking about acting, he interrupted himself to state: "You know what I'd really like to do some day? Shave off all my hair, just to see what it would look like! If I ever have a few months off, maybe I'll do it!" Hmmm... could this be a new fad, I wonder?

So far you've only been able to see David in featured roles on various TV shows, but he's done a pilot for his own series. This is a very important thing for an actor, because the weekly exposure (like Bobby Sherman on "Brides") gives them the best opportunity to show you what they can do. The rest is up to you, their audience! As soon as I met David I had the feeling that some really big things were ahead for him! Let me know what you think! More about David Cassidy on page 21.

Mitch Vogel is another name we're hearing lots about, so one sunny afternoon I dashed over to the Columbia Ranch where Mitch was working on a segment of "Here Come the Brides." It's always a pleasure to go there, because everyone on the set is so friendly and nice. I spotted Bridget Hanley right away. She was between scenes and filling her time by knitting away at her newest creation. "I've always got to keep my hands busy!" she laughed.

After we chatted for awhile, I spotted Mitch, who was in costume for his role as the poor, mistreated orphan. I just had to laugh when his first words were, "I got all dressed up for you!" His shirt and jeans were torn and dirty and there were no laces in his scuffed-up boots!

Mitch's big break came when he costarred with Steve McQueen in "The Reivers" but he's done lots of TV work too. "Outside of working on that movie," he confessed in his surprisingly deep voice, "doing 'brides' has been the most fun for me! Everybody is so nice, especially Bobby Sherman!"

Like everyone else who knows Bobby, Mitch has become a big fan! He even got Bobby to autograph a picture of himself in the FaVE magazine I brought with me! Mitch has also filmed a pilot for a new fall TV series called "Two Boys," and is waiting for news about it. Looks like the upcoming TV season is going to be the best yet if all goes well, so cross your fingers for David and Mitch!

Already starring in a series and pulling lots of fan mail (which he answers personally) is Barry Williams of "The Brady Bunch!" When I met him I was immediately impressed by his shy smile and brilliant blue eyes! Barry is absolutely loaded with charm plus the kind of good manners that would win your mom's approval in a minute!

Ringo Starr popped into town to promote his new film, "The Magic Christian," and it's always a little more exciting when there's a Beatle around! Going to his press conference made HAPPIER DAYS for Sajid when he was dating a different girl every night!
