

JEREMY GELBWAKS

Blue-eyed, brown-haired Jeremy Gelbwaks plays Chris, the youngest of the Partridge boys and the drummer in the family group. He was born on May 22, 1961 in Hollywood, and before he got the part on "The Partridge Family" Jeremy's total acting experience consisted of two commercials and one skit on the "Pat Paulsen Half A Comedy Hour"—but he's a natural in his new role!

Jeremy enjoys bike riding, skiing, reading, sailing and fishing, and plays baseball with a T-Ball League (he's still too young for Little League). When he gets older, Jeremy would like to be a writer, and he has already written a play for his school!

DANNY BONADUCE

Danny Bonaduce plays Danny, the 11-year-old financial genius whose determination starts the Partridges on their singing career.

Danny was born on August 13, 1959 in Philadelphia, the youngest of four children. His parents are both professional TV writers—in fact, his father is story editor for "Arnie," a new comedy series which starts this fall. Danny is now a fourth grader at a San Fernando Valley, California grammar school, but he's been acting longer than he's been going to school. He did his first commercial at the age of six, and since then has appeared in TV shows like, "Bewitched," "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir," and "Mayberry, RFD."

When he's not working on "The Partridge Family," Danny enjoys horseback and mini-bike riding. He has a horse named Patience and a basset hound named Samantha, which he shares with his brother. He also enjoys playing the guitar and is teaching himself how to type.

SUZANNE CROUGH

Suzanne plays Tracy, the youngest Partridge in the show. She has good experience for the role, because in real life she's the youngest of eight children!

Suzanne was born on March 6, 1963 and has lived in Anaheim, California all her life. She's in the first grade at Dr. Peter Marshall's School and when she isn't in school or working on "The Partridge Family," she does many of the things other girls her age do. She loves roller skating and playing with dolls and, since she's a bit of a tomboy, she also likes bike riding, swimming, tree climbing and playing ball with her brothers.

She has four pets—three of them are guppies and one is a white cat named Johnnie.
