

Sea Horse Ranch

ONLY $2.98

Adults and children alike gasp and laugh with delight when they see these wonderful and unusual pets from the sea. These curious creatures with heads like little horses, are unlike any fish. They swim and move through the water without any apparent effort. They hitch themselves by their tails to anything they can grab including each other. When you look at them, they look back at you. They sail around, they feed themselves, they turn summersaults and "stand on their heads." The female lays the eggs in the male's pouch and he hatches them. The baby sea ponies come out alive ready to swim.

HOURS AND HOURS OF PLEASURE
You'll get hours and hours of pleasure setting up your Sea Horse Ranch and watching in fascination how these curious fish—like nothing else in the world—swim, play, feed, hatch their young. It is a great new interesting and educational hobby even if you never had a pet before. It is a novel addition for any fish lover or collector.

EASY TO CARE FOR
And they are easy to care for. You get everything you need—the "ranch" aquarium where they live, the sea trees where they rest, the sea salts for creating the right environment, the silica sand for a beautiful gleaming bottom and enough sea horse food to last for months and months.

"Actually," Gary adds, "Girls are girls, no matter when, no matter where."

The thing Procol Harum hope for most right now is that lots of people will hear and enjoy their new album, "Home." "Home" is the end of the game that's drawn on the album cover, and you can actually play it if you make up your own pieces and rules.

Will Procol Harum continue to stay together? "At least for 8 or 9 weeks," they say (that is, until the end of their tour).

"Things that happen to make groups part are things you just can't talk about," says Gary.

But those things aren't likely to happen to Procol Harum. Like rock and roll and other good things, "Procol Harum's here to stay," Gary proclaims.

DAVID CASSIDY'S PAST

His success may have come to him a lot faster than he ever expected, but it was by no means overnight. He studied long and hard and was sincere and dedicated to his career and goals.

David didn't begin his training until after he graduated from his Beverly Hills high school and struck out on his own. He didn't want the kind of success that some second generation entertainers have today. He didn't want to become famous because of his name or his family background. He wanted to do it on his own—to prove to himself that he was a good actor and musician in his own right.

So after working for a year with the Los Angeles Theater Group and appearing in their production of "And So To Bed," he went back to his hometown, New York, to study at the David Craig School of Musical Comedy. Those were happy days for David. He was on his own, doing the kind of work he liked best and living in his favorite city. But even with all the excitement that New York has to offer, David kept pretty much to himself. Aside from visiting museums, exhibits and landmarks, he spent most of his time studying and watching other performers at work. And finally it paid off. He won a well-deserved co-starring role in his first Broadway musical, "The Fig Leaves Are Falling."

After his New York triumph, he went back to California and continued working on his music. He got his own little house in rustic Laurel Canyon, where he was really able to work unin-
