

David & Susan Tell It Like It IS!

my parents who rushed me to the nearest doctor. I had to have several stitches. Unfortunately, the wound got infected and it took three months to heal. When it finally did heal, it left the scar which you can still see today.

Dear David,

I really enjoy your new show and I think you're the greatest actor I've ever seen. I'd love to join your fan club, if you have one!

Stacey Pinoris
San Jose, Calif.

Dear Stacey,

Your compliments are certainly appreciated. Right now, I don't have a personal fan club, but you can join the "Partridge Family Fan Club," which is a fan club for the whole gang on the show. You can join by sending $2.00 to: Partridge Fan Club, 6311 Yucca Street, Hollywood, California 90028. Thanks for thinking of us!

Dear Susan,

I know that you were a model before you became an actress, so maybe you can tell me how the models get such super looks, just like they were sewn into their clothes. I always feel lumpy and bumpy and messy. Help!

Diane Franks
Memphis, Tenn.

Dear Diane,

The reason models look so super is because they are pinned into their clothes! You should see some girls on the street—baggy jeans, floppy hair—but when they want to look nice, they watch for three things: 1. Clothes must fit perfectly. 2. Clothes must move well—when you move, so should your skirt. It shouldn't just hug you like a piece of cardboard. 3. Smile a lot. People will be so dazzled they'll never notice any tiny imperfections you might have.

Dear David,

I've watched you on TV and think you're absolutely dreamy. One of my girlfriends told me you were the son of Jack Cassidy, the actor. Is that true?

Cindy Osborne
New York, N.Y.

Dear Cindy,

Yes, my father is Jack Cassidy. By the way, if you don't already know it, Shirley Jones, who played my TV mom, is in real life, my step-mom! What's even more unusual is that when we were each cast in our role on "The Partridge Family," the producer didn't know we were related!

us has a private life of our own. Just the same, I think David's dreamy, just like you!

Dear David,

I'm just 10 years old, and my new fave is Danny Bonaduce. I hope you won't mind if I ask you a few things about Danny like how old he is, when his birthday is and what his hobbies are. Thanks in advance!

Shirley Robson
Anaheim, Calif.

Dear Shirley,

I'd be more than happy to tell you about Danny, 'cause that's what this column is all about. Both Susan and I want to answer your every question.

Dear Susan,

You can tell me—is David really as groovy as he seems? Also, do you two ever date?

Cynthia Whitenight
Baltimore, Md.

Dear Cynthia,

David is even groovier than he appears on TV, because he's so nice and tender and thoughtful, and all those qualities don't always come across on a TV screen. He's one of my best friends and although we had one date while making the pilot for the TV series, we haven't gone on a date since. We just found that we liked being best friends and each of

And to answer yours—Danny is 11 years old, born August 13, 1959. His favorite pastime is horseback riding, since he owns his own horse named "Patience." He named his horse Patience because his parents say he doesn't have any! Also, he's dying to buy a mini-bike, that is if he doesn't get one for Christmas, which he's hoping for!
