

girls or guys—that really bugs me. I get really frustrated around them.”

That's David's feeling on girls—do you think you fit in there anywhere? If you're female and alive, David would probably like you.

It's said you can tell a lot about how a guy will treat a girl by his relationship with his mother. David really loves his real mother but he's in that often sticky position of having a stepmother, too. His father, actor Jack Cassidy, married actress Shirley Jones when David was only seven years old.

But if David's relationship with his stepmother is any hint toward the way he'll treat girls, the girl he marries will indeed be a lucky girl.

“I get along with her great,” David says of his second mother, “She's really a groovy chick and she's like my friend. We really have a good relationship. We kid around a lot and I really like her. I think she's a fantastic performer. I really respect her.”

WHAT I LIKE IN GIRLS!

“What do I like in girls? That's a hard question. I don't know, just as long as they're bright. I like girls who are vibrant, alive, girls who care one way or another.”
