

DAVID CASSIDY as revealed by his HANDWRITING!

by CASSANDRA

You can't keep anything a secret from somebody who knows how to analyze handwriting—or so many people believe! FaVE just happens to know someone who possesses this rare gift! Her name is Cassandra, and she's agreed to use her magical powers for us every month on some of your favorite stars! Who knows what she'll find!

What's the first thing you like to know about a person you've just met? His age? Occupation? Interests? Those are probably the most common inquiries upon first meetings, but would you believe my friends and I like to see handwriting samples?

Now I'll be the first to admit it's not the ideal approach to acquiring friends, but it does have its advantages! Handwriting is very much like a mirror to the soul, enabling you to discover hidden traits about an individual that might normally go by unnoticed.

This month I had the opportunity to analyze David Cassidy's handwriting, and I think you'll be pleased with the outcome!

LIKEABLE AND AFFECTIONATE

After one glance at the strong forward slant of David's writing, I knew instantly that he is a very likeable and affectionate guy who truly enjoys being among people. He likes making new acquaintances and doing things with friends.

I can see that David chose the right field when he decided upon entertainment—the pressure with which he writes gives it away! In order to be successful in any profession one must have determination while working towards his goals. If effort is lacking, it is evident in the output of work.

People who lack ambition and drive usually write with light pressure, showing little concern for what happens. On the other hand, those who write heavily possess perseverance and ambition and are usually successful in all they do.

David's handwriting borders between medium and heavy, signifying his desire to work hard and convert his energy into something constructive. This is a good sign, and achievement is its reward.

While studying the endings of David's words I was especially fascinated by his d's! Notice how David curves the final stroke around the word he's just written?

People who do this are usually protective and are on the lookout to guard themselves and others from danger. Writing like this also denotes sensitivity, and if the curve is ever hooked (as David's sometimes is) it reveals inclinations towards a sense of humor.

Many people find it difficult to maintain a straight line while writing, but did you know that sometimes it's beyond control? Moods can dictate the course of writing, and often times a person who is cheerful and happy will write uphill. Downhill slopes can be characteristic of depression.

David, however, usually keeps his writing straight, indicating he's contented with the way things are. And that's the way it should be, right? Right!

