ought to get involved in! Now are you going to promise me to give it a fair chance?"

"Yes I am!" I answered, surprised by the firmness of my voice. And I did! The very next day, I joined the Science Club, and before the term was over, I was elected president! I'm not going to tell you that everything was easy, and I was immediately the most popular (or even the 20th) girl in school!

But that afternoon I shared with David, when I opened my innermost secrets to him, convinced me that there are people who cared what happened to me! I saw David often after that day, but he never mentioned our talk again. I think he knew he didn't need to!

"I CALLED TO SAY GOODBYE"

The months my father was gone went quickly, and suddenly I was in my bedroom, packing for my trip home. I hadn't been able to see David at all at school that day, so I called him to say goodbye.

"I'm going to miss you, Melissa, but I'm happy that you'll be back with your family again," were David's words.

"Yes, I'm looking forward to seeing both of them!" I said. "I'm sad about leaving Hamilton and everybody, but I'm excited too! I guess you could say I've got mixed feelings!"

"And listen, little one," I could almost see David's grin as he said it, "whatever you do, don't lose that cute lisp!"

Well, the lisp is gone, along with the braces and the glasses. But the change in me remained, and I'll be grateful to David for helping me forever and ever. He was in and out of my life for what seems like a minute now, but he changed it in a very special and wonderful way, that I'll never forget.

You see, I was David's first real fan... and he was my first real friend!
