have found him a bit harder to track down. The reason? Petite, blond Robyn Millan, a 22-year-old actress who has been keeping David pretty close to home. "David is the greatest," Robyn told PHOTOPLAY. "He's just marvelous and really knows how to handle his success." Her respect for the "Partridge Family" star was obvious, and it soon became apparent how she had won David's heart. It all began on the show's set; Robyn, just like many other girls, had arrived for a "guest shot." But this time, something clicked. Impulsively, David asked her to join him at the Yankee Clipper for lunch. "He usually dates girls out of the business," Robyn told us, "but I guess he took time out to study my mind, and we hit it off from that first day, six months ago. You know," she hesitated, "I respect him very much, and I think this is what makes us so close. I worked very hard for a lot of years, and David worked very hard for his career, even though it's gone so well so quickly. His career comes first; he (Continued on page 104)
