DAVID ASKS:

"Why Do They Say Those Awful Things?"

Despite his frustration and own hurt, David was thinking of the pain and heartache these lies were causing to the people who meant so much to him. His fans!

He'd received thousands of letters begging him for the truth and real stories to erase the rumors that caused them so much distress. But how could he ever completely erase the damage that had been done to them, the people he loved?

For every second each one might have spent in confusion over the distorted facts, David suffered ten times as much. He wanted them to know the truth about everything! Not just about him, but to rid the horrible existence of lies throughout the world! Lies that did nothing but bring moments spent in sadness—moments that would never come again.

Suddenly, David walked to the desk and began writing rapidly. He may not reach all of them, but for the few fans who would read his personal replies, perhaps if they knew the truth they would help him in his fight against rumors and lies.

Even as he wrote, David's face slowly formed the smile he usually had. Knowing he would have his true fans behind him, maybe he could end this madness. A friend was someone you turned to in time of trouble and his best friends, he realized, were the fans who believed in him. With their help and faith, someday he would no longer be afraid to read the letters and magazines that came to him. And he would no longer have to wonder, "Why do they say those awful things?"
