

THE GIRL I MARRY

by

Marriage can be a beautiful relationship—perhaps the most beautiful in the world, especially if you're married to David Cassidy! David undoubtedly will get married someday in the future and YOU might be the chosen girl. It's a magical world so you never can tell, YOU might be perfect for David. See for yourself as David talks about the girl he'll marry!

Every guy can't help but wonder what the girl will be like whom he finally asks to marry him and share his whole life, and I'm no exception!

Sometimes I lie in bed at night just before I drift off to sleep and try to picture YOUR face in my mind. Sometimes if I listen very close, I can hear the music of your laughter, and faintly I can see you running towards me in a long flowing dress across a sun-drenched meadow of waving grass.

I wonder about your hair, your smile, your touch—what will they be like? And what will you say to me in that first miraculous moment when we finally realize that we are deeply in Love!

NEVER IN LOVE

I've never really been in Love before but when I do fall in love—I'll know it! You see, there will be only one girl, one true love, one wife for me my whole life through!

I don't know exactly what you look like, I haven't met you yet, but there are certain wonderful traits I know you possess. You'll always be shiny and clean for one thing!

You'll never let too much make-up touch your beautiful face—you know I like natural things and so do you! Your fresh face smiling down on me is all I need!

I think too, that before we love each other, we'll like each other! Liking and loving are both parts of the same thing, they blend into one another and sometimes neither is any good without the other. How can you truly love someone, if you don't like them too?

One of the things I'll love about YOU will be your femininity. I think that's so important. You'll like being a woman, and you'll dress in soft feminine things, that flow behind you, or gently drape against your body.

BEST OF FRIENDS

As my friend, for we'll be best of friends, you'll understand all the things that are important to me—and as True Loves we'll love each other for no other reason than that we are we. I won't try to change you, and you won't try to change me. We wouldn't be ourselves if we changed would we?

And you'll be concerned too, about people, places, animals, the world. You'll want to help make this world a better place for the children we'll have someday. You love children as much as I do—and maybe on Sunday you'll take some of the children who are less fortunate than others, on a picnic outing!

One thing I'll admire about you is your courage! Even when I've got to go away on location shootings and
