

you can't come, you'll be brave, and you wouldn't put up any fusses or fights because you know that in my work these trips are necessary.

You see, you understand perfectly how important my profession is to me. You understand my love of acting and singing and how much music means to me. You care about what makes me happy just as I care about your happiness, too!

A FEW CLOSE FRIENDS

Deep inside, you won't be a bit impressed by all the glamorous Hollywood things and people that you'll meet as my wife. Although you're just like me and prefer having a few close friends over to a party, sometimes we'll have to entertain formally—and we'll learn how to do it together.

That's another thing I love about you—you're always willing to learn or try something new! Your whole outlook on life is positive and when I'm with you I can feel your strength in the happy vibrations that radiate from you!

One thing we'll do together often is talk. Talking things over is so important and we'll trust each other deeply and try our hardest to help one another over difficult spots.

You'll have patience, too. If I'm late or detained on the set for something and you've got to wait for me, you'll never let me see how very disappointed you are. You're just not that way are you? You've even got patience for my sometimes impatient ways! That's what makes you so wonderful—in my eyes you're absolutely perfect—at least perfect in what counts!

MORE THAN ANYONE

Sometimes I wonder if I will be worthy of a beautiful person like you. I know that I will love you more than anyone on earth for you will be life itself to me. I'll need you so much!

And when I come home tired after a long day before the television cameras, even though it may be late, I know you'll be there. And as I drive homeward to you and your Love I'll know that my life is complete.

You'll have fixed something that we both like very much for dinner and the evening will be a quiet, intimated one with candle-light and incense.

As we sit there enjoying our time together, I'll feel the energy that I spent on the set all day flowing back into me, and going right out again, radiating as Love towards YOU through the room so filled with our devotion!

NOT AFRAID TO GIVE

You're naturally and comfortably affectionate, not afraid to show me your love, and not afraid to give it. I know that you'll always be ready to hold me when things have been rough in the outside world. Our arms will always be to share and our Love will surround us with unspeakable joy!

These things I think of and dream of often and sometimes I can see you walking down the aisle towards me on the arm of your dad—I can see you like a faint image—a beautiful shadow, but that is all—because I haven't met you yet! My eyes are searching for you in every crowd, on every street—and my heart is waiting to beat close to yours. Will I find you soon?
