

The very first thing I noticed about David Cassidy when we saw each other, were his long, thick eyelashes and his brilliant, happy smile! That was four years ago when I first saw David in the hall at University High School!

David stood out in a crowd even then. It wasn't until several months after I first saw him that we actually met and got to know one another. David was best friends, then, with my boyfriend, Kevin. And every time Kevin and I would have an argument, David would call me on the phone and try to patch things up!

And it usually worked! David has an inborn kindness and a true concern for the people he's close to. Kevin and I would argue about the silliest thing and David would always say the right things to get us back together!

At that time, David never let on that he had any interest in show business. He never mentioned to anyone that he wanted to be an actor someday! In fact, David was a delivery boy for
