

GOD IN MY LIFE
Continued

if astrology is your thing, and you think it's right for you, well, you have a perfect right to make that decision, too. That's part of personal freedom, after all.

Each of us grows as we work hard to find our own truth about God. I don't think about God as an old man with a white beard. Actually, I don't think of God as looking like a human being at all. To me God is invisible because he is pure spirit.

But, he is also totally seeable when you look at the world He has created. You can see Him in a beautiful many-colored rainbow. And you can see Him in the scary face of the ugliest snake you may ever see when you walk through the mountains like I do.

Things that people think are ugly or horrible don't appear that way at all to God. He made them all, and he looks at them as individuals, whose value has nothing to do with the details of their looks!

TRUE BEAUTY

I feel the same way about girls' looks, or their so-called physical "beauty." They have nothing at all to do with the true beauty of a person. Some of the grooviest looking actresses I know here in Hollywood are so unbeautiful inside that I'm not with them more than two minutes then I wish I was somewhere else talking to other friends, or even you, because you are truly beautiful to me!

I don't go to church anymore now because I find that most churches try to limit my thinking about God in my life to exactly this or exactly that.

I think too many rules and regulations that some churches have tend to limit one's relationship with God. I prefer to communicate with God through being out in nature, seeing, feeling and smelling all of his beautiful creatures and creations.

Instead of going to God in church once a week on Sunday, I'd rather see him every day, when I look up into the stars at night, or see the beautiful green trees when I drive to work.

I'd rather wander through God's beautiful mountains and meadows under the wide, blue sky, listening to his wordless whispers in the woodland wind. It's there that I feel closest to Him and there that I feel His divine presence so strongly in my life.
