

40 FAVES REVEAL:

Imagine Bobby Sherman as your acting teacher, or David Cassidy as your guide for a scuba diving tour! When Tiger Beat asked your faves what they would like to do if they could no longer perform in show business, all of them came up with some surprising answers! Read what your groovy faves' secret ambitions are!

DAVID CASSIDY

"Whenever I see those underwater TV specials on Jacques Cousteau, I am glued to the set! I could really dig exploring the underwater world. The unknown is always exciting!"

BOBBY SHERMAN

"I love working with young people, but I also love show business too much to leave it completely. So I would like to run an acting school teaching talented young people."

DONNY OSMOND

"This is going to be a switch! One of my main interests—although I don't have a chance to pursue it—is electronics. I think I'd like to try being an electrician."

JACK WILD

"My secret ambition isn't really such a secret! I mean, after all, I make no attempt to hide it! I have always wanted to make children laugh so I'd like to write a kid's comedy."

SUSAN DEY

"Helping people has always been my number one desire. Sometimes I almost feel as if I was put here to be helpful! I'd love working with handicapped children at a special school."

BARRY WILLIAMS

"If there is one job that's always fascinated me it's architecture! When I drive around and see those beautifully constructed buildings, I realize how I dig having a job like that!"
