

Next stop is the kitchen. Don't get any ideas—I still cannot cook, but I thought you might like to see how the oven works.

Ah, this is more like it—wheat germ, yogurt, whole grain bread and an apple! Oops—what's that? Oh, the laundry man is here.

No sooner do I get the shirts put away and start to put the towels in the linen closet than the phone rings—"Hi, nope—sorry, you've got the wrong number."

And this Japanese silkscreen print—what do you say we hang it right over here on this wall—in the den?

Before you go, let's have a friendly game of pool. You don't play? I'll teach you. Take this little white ball and—oh, well—there must be something better we can do.
