

30 Faves Confide:

A star's world is a busy one, filled with excitement and lots of different people. It seems that every moment is crammed with things to do and places to go! If he isn't working on a TV show or a movie, there are concert tours, recording and photo sessions, publicity appearances, appointments with agents, editors, directors, etc. etc. etc.! Your faves wouldn't want their lives to be any other way, but once in a while they need to stop to catch their breath! Just like you, they treasure those quiet moments alone, relaxing and taking the time for some private thinking and dreaming. Where do they go? Here's what 30 top faves answered when we asked!

David Cassidy

"First I go into my bedroom, closing the door behind me. Then I turn up the stereo full blast and stretch myself out in bed!"

Bobby Sherman

"My place of refuge is my Rolls. I make sure the gas tank is filled up and then I go for a long drive with music playing softly."

Donny Osmond

"Sometimes late at night, when everyone is asleep, I put on my jacket and take a long walk around the quiet streets near my house."

Jack Wild

"After buying some apples and sweets to snack on, I buy a train ticket to any place close by and ride the round trip sitting by a window."

Rick Ely

"There's a park near where I live that's never very crowded, and I lie in the grass under a shady tree and watch the children play."

Barry Williams

"I hop onto my cycle and choose the most deserted roads I know of, taking a ride that sometimes lasts for several hours!"
