

"Where I Go To Be Alone!"

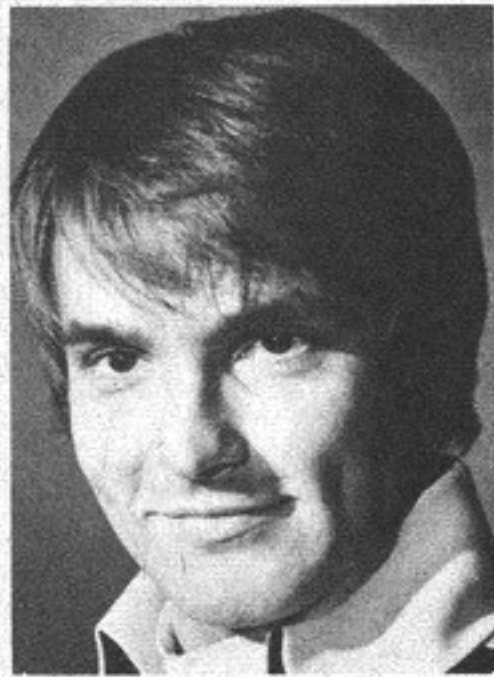

Merrill Osmond

"If I feel like being by myself for awhile I hop into my car and take a ride to the beach. That's always peaceful and relaxing."

Kurt Russell

"My horse Raquel and I go for a long ride through the hills near my home, and I usually let her choose the way for us."

Philippe Forquet

"It sounds almost mystic, but to be alone I really don't go anywhere. Instead, I just cut myself off from my surroundings and think I'm alone!"

Clarence Williams

"My kitchen is where I can go and tune out the rest of the world. I start making up wild new things to eat and forget everything else."

Mark Lester

"There's a playroom in my house where I keep all the projects I'm working on at the moment. I go in there and close the door!"

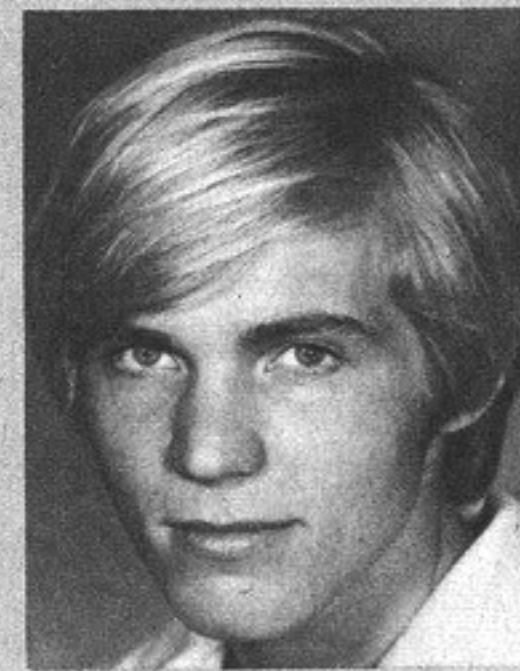

Barry Cowsill

"There's no doubt about it—my little spot of isolation is the den! I just go in and close the door and presto! I'm all alone!"

Mark Lindsay

"I let the answering service take care of the telephone and then I put on my trunks and lie out by the pool with a good book."

Frank Webb

"To be alone, I hop on my trusty motorcycle and create the feeling of complete freedom by zipping around the hills around my new home."
