Picture this scene: You have just had dinner with David Cassidy. The two of you walk into the candle-lit hallway, and you are looking into his eyes. Suddenly you notice a spark in his eyes. Could it be the spark of romance? It could not! It's a reflection of your hair... on FIRE!

It happened like this:

One evening in November, David came to our house for dinner. Unfortunately, dinner wasn't ready... and David was starved! The fact was, dinner was not about to be ready for another hour, so we sat and talked, and ate pistachio nuts... (how romantic... a loaf of bread, a jug of wine and a pistachio nut!) until dinner was at last served.

After we had eaten, David announced that he hated to eat and run, but he had to run. We got up from the table and walked to the entryway. As I was saying goodbye, my hair swept past some candles. At first I didn't notice that my hair was on fire, but I caught on quick! I raced into the bathroom, and dunked my hair, velvet choker and new dress into the sink. After I was extinguished, I made a grand re-entry into the hallway, just in time to hear David say "Celia, your hair was on fire!"

And just that quickly, my most romantic moment was turned into a most embarrassing one.

Later, I told Susan Dey about it, and she was very comforting. "Don't worry about it. We all have embarrassing moments. I'm always putting my foot in my mouth, especially when I'm around people I don't know."

Then, to put me at ease, Susan thoughtfully shared one of her embarrassing moments.

"One of the most awkward things that ever happened to me, was when I was wearing false eyelashes... for the one and only time! One of the darned things fell off onto my blouse. I was at a party, and apparently no one wanted to embarrass me by mentioning that there was an eyelash on my shirt. So I wore it there most of the day, until a young girl came up to me and asked me if I knew there was a bug on my blouse."

Dave Madden said that there were two equally embarrassing moments in his life. "One was the time I found myself naked at Howard Johnson's. The second was finding Howard Johnson naked in my living room!" Dave laughed, but he wouldn't tell us a real embarrassing moment.

Shirley Jones was sitting on the set, waiting for the next scene to begin, when we discussed her most embarrassing moment.

"I was in an office, trying hard to be regal and impressive for a new producer. When I walked into his office, he pulled out a chair for me. I didn't see him do it, and when I sat down, I landed with a thud on the floor! People tell me I'll laugh about it someday... but up till now, I still blush when I think about it!"

Danny and I both remember his worst mess! It happened a couple of Christmases ago. We had gone shopping with Mom, and we got separated from her. We looked around the store for about a half hour and then Danny suddenly screamed: "I found her... there she is!" and went hurtling into her arms. They went down in a tangle of arms and packages and confusion. And of course, you guessed... it wasn't Mom at all, but some poor defenseless lady doing her late shopping!

Jeremy laughed hardest when he heard about Danny because he did the same kind of thing. He chased up to a man at a store and grabbed his hand... he thought it was his dad. We don't know what the man thought, but Jeremy said he just looked at Jeremy like he'd lost his mind!

Suzanne Crough says that her most embarrassing moment keeps happening. She gets embarrassed everytime she falls off her bike. Suzanne says it's a real problem because it's not only embarrassing, it hurts!
