

PARTRIDGE PASSIONS

What really turns them on? What do they find impossible to resist? Here's what they can't get enough of!

DAVID CASSIDY has a definite "thing" for being out in the country. But for him, "country" doesn't simply mean "non-city" or "sticks." When he says he likes being out in the country, he's actually talking about freedom, about being able to breathe. Because what David really wants most of all is to be able to be somewhere where people aren't all crowded around him, where there's the fresh air and freedom he thinks is so important!

According to DANNY BONADUCE's mother, Danny "has the attention span of a gnat" for most everything except acting, which he can do happily all day. But there's one other thing he can do for what seems like forever—and that's ride the Honda bike he bought himself! He spends so much of his free time riding, in fact, he bought his mother a Vespa so she could go with him! (And she does!)

You might never guess that adorable little SUZANNE CROUGH, is, in reality, a tomboy, but she has an absolute passion for doing everything she sees boys do! She goes horseback riding a lot (she wants a horse of her own very much, in fact), lists science as her favorite school subject, and has a special fondness for all animals, including bugs. And she's not afraid to pick them up!
