Your Face-to-Face Day with David Cassidy!

The last question you asked David last month was: "What turns you off?" and he had answered: "Extremists, phonies and total opportunists. The depressing thing is that I'm constantly surrounded by them."

If you remember, your face-to-face day with David was arranged by Rickie Galobic, FLIP's Editorial Assistant. She had an interview set up with David when you came by FLIP's offices on Park Avenue and 54th Street. Since David was staying only three blocks away, at The Warwick Hotel on Sixth Avenue and 54th Street, Rickie invited you along . . . without telling you who you were going to meet!

As you stepped off the elevator on the Warwick's seventh floor, walked down the empty corridor and knocked on the door, you had this jumpy feeling that something spectacular was about to happen. And it did! Because the door was opened by a barefoot, blue-jeaned young man who looked very much like David Bruce Cassidy!

He looked like DBC because he was David Bruce Cassidy!

And, as soon as the introductions were over,

Rickie and ABC-TV publicist Vic Ghidalia left the two of you . . . you and David . . . alone to talk. You picked up where you and David had left off . . .

YOU: "I hate to ask, but who are your favorite girls?"

DAVID: "Linda Ronstadt. Otherwise, I've got no favorite girls. We're talking about performers, not girls, period."

YOU: "Who are your favorite guys, as performers?"

DAVID: "I don't have any favorite actors. Musically, I like Jeff Beck, Rod Stewart and B.B. King."

YOU: "Which are your favorite groups?"

DAVID: "I like all kinds of music, listen to lots of groups, like blues the best. If I had to pick one favorite group, I'd probably select 'Chicago'."

YOU: "What are your thoughts about Bobby Sherman?"

DAVID: "I haven't thought about him much. I like him as a performer. I don't know him well personally."
