

After the walk, he'll take you to his home, maybe type up a quick letter to you. Whenever he can manage the time, this is how he answers his correspondence, the tons and tons of it!

How about a walk through the woods? Just a quiet, peaceful walk, holding hands, maybe, talking a little, softly, laughing now and then, a kind of happy laughter.

Then sit for a while on a wooden fence and stare up into the trees, or search the sky; perhaps look into each other's eyes. David loves nature, loves the trees and the birds and all the outdoors. There's something so wonderful, so magic about it all.
