

DAVID CASSIDY'S SUPER LUV STICKERS

DAVID AND I HAD the time of our lives on our "secret" Hawaiian vacation. Hope you've enjoyed hearing about it here in Tiger Beat!

and you should have seen the stampede! All of them were so excited, and the photographer was apparently pretty shook up, too, because she forgot to take the lens cap off! There were a lot of let-down girls when that roll of film came out totally black!

Since that night was supposed to be our last night in Maui, we had planned to go out on the town and party a little, but the salt air and the skin diving made us pretty tired, so we said good night and stumbled up to our rooms and crashed—at about eight-thirty!

SAD TO LEAVE

Almost immediately (or so it seemed) after I fell asleep, my phone woke me into pitch blackness. It was David, naturally, reminding me that I was about to miss my very last Hawaiian sunrise. I made it down to the beach somehow, stared at the sunrise until I felt hungry, and then we went up the beach to the hotel's open-air dining room for breakfast. By now we were laughing about how much we had been eating, and TIGER BEAT'S super photographer, Kenny Lieu, had decided to take pictures of the meal for you to see with your own eyes!

David had a little more Christmas shopping to get in, so we went and tended to that, and then we wandered around for a little while—and then, all of a sudden, it was time to start getting ready to pack up for the trip home. We were both a little sad to leave, but we were also anxious to get home to our families for Christmas, so we hurried
