

DAVID CASSIDY: "Come Daydream With Me!"

... about being the only person on earth for one day. What a strange feeling that would be to walk down the quiet, empty streets, and see all the traffic and people frozen motionless.

... about sailing along the ocean with that "special" girl I've yet to meet, with the wind blowing in our faces, and our destination determined by its course.

... about being a great songwriter. I would write dozens of songs just for you and sing them to you at night as we sat before a cozy fire.

... about scuba diving deep in the ocean, and finding something totally unexpected—like a long, lost treasure, or other thing that dates many years back.

... about going back into history and telling people what life is going to be like in 1971—and seeing how they react. I hope I don't get burned at the stake!

... about sitting under the stars, with the roar of the waves in the background, cooking hot-dogs and marshmallows on a campfire with my "special" girl. The meal would be followed by a moonlight walk along the waves of this faraway beach.
