

DAVID CASSIDY

"I don't dig big parties. I like to be with a few people if I really dig them. Big parties are a bore because everybody is so busy being phony—stuff like that isn't important to me. Perhaps that's why I've had trouble finding one special girl. All I do know is that I have never met a girl who could keep me interested. So far, I just seem to have met the shallow types who have no depth.

"Maybe I'm on the defensive, too, I don't know. But to me it seems that most girls try so hard to play it cool—because they think guys like that—but then you never really get down to the basic things. Actually, since I've been 17, I haven't dated too many girls my own age. I find girls who are a little older are at least a bit more settled. What I'm looking for is another human being so important to me that I would want to share everything with her . . . to be with her forever.

"Sure, up until now I've played the field. I've dated a lot of different girls . . . but what I really want is to get involved with someone so special that I wouldn't be able to go through life without her!"

Actually, that's about all anyone can get David to say about the girl he's searching for. He gives a few hints, but not too much to go on really. What exactly David says to his mystery girl in the letters he writes her, no one can say. Certainly they must be very moving letters, because David has a rather poetic nature. However, what exactly he does say, he won't say!

"Sometimes people ask me if I could ever be happy married to an actress. Well, there is that old thing about two egos in a family being one too many. But I don't exclude any possibility. I'll marry an actress, or a secretary—or anyone, no matter what her profession—if she has the qualities that are important to me.

"Look, I feel this way because I've reached a stage in my life where I am stable. I am mentally prepared to accept success or failure without being visibly shaken. Of course, I won't be pleased if I fail, because I do so want to make something of my life. But at least I think I will be able to meet whatever life has to hand out to me and make the best of it. Life is really so very short, why be unhappy if you don't have to be?"

David is mature beyond his years. He seems to know just what he can and cannot do to make himself happy. For instance, David receives thousands of love letters every week. He gets letters from girls and women of all ages offering him everything from going steady and getting married to one night stands.

A little girl wrote him the following: "I am 9 years old, but I am almost 10. My aunt has the record called The Partridge Album. My aunt is 11 years old."

Another girl wrote the following letter to David: "I've always dreamed I was going steady with you, but now I blush whenever I think about it. I heard that you are 20 years old."

Still another had this to say: "I hope my letters have been getting to you. I'm just wondering because I haven't gotten any back from you. If you think I have a boy friend, I
