

MY SECRET STRENGTH

BY DAVID

To some people, laughter is like the sound of music and David Cassidy is one of those people who believes in the musical magic of laughter!

I like to feel that there's always a reason for smiling. Sometimes when I'm really low and I feel like I'm standing about two inches off the ground—I make myself stop and think of all the great things in my life and in the people and world around me. I guess that's the biggest reason why I've liked laughing so much too! Since I usually have a smile on my face, I kind of have a headstart into laughter.

I believe if a person could only try to be aware of everything surrounding him, he'll find there is always something happening that causes him to laugh. We sometimes forget to appreciate just the funny little things that exist.

One time when I had just begun living in my own house, I had to go grocery shopping. I was so busy with my own thoughts (especially of all the good food I was going to buy!) that I wasn't paying much attention to anybody or anything!

I remember there was a lady with two small children, and she had given them some candy to share. The older one, who was about five years old, was dividing the chocolate bar. The two halves weren't exactly matched, so he took a bite out of the larger half and gave one piece
